

MA in Art History in Rome
From Late Antiquity to the Present
University of Rome Tor Vergata

The course

The Master of Art in Art History in Rome from Late Antiquity to the Present is a two-year programme taught entirely in English, thus internationally open and practice oriented.

It offers the opportunity to study art history in direct contact with art works in their original context.

The programme

The MA provides at first an in-depth analysis in three main disciplinary areas: art history; archaeology and architecture; methodology. Then students will choose among specialized courses, orienting their academic careers towards a more specific research field.

Rome as a course book

The teaching will be mostly held in direct contact with the art works and contexts, as the programme has close ties with many of the most important art history institutions active in Rome.

Entry Requirements

A University degree or a recognised post-secondary qualification is required. Selection is based on academic standing, CV and certified knowledge of English language (CEF B2).
